

Code: Y-105

USB/RS-232 CONVERTER Y-105

The cable enables connecting to the USB computer port the devices equipped with RS-232 port (alarm control panels, meters, TV decoders, satellite receivers, GPS receivers, routers, mobile phones, vehicle diagnostic tools and many others).

|                      |                                                                                                                               |
|----------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Length of the cable: | 1.4 m                                                                                                                         |
| Compatibility:       | Port USB 1.1                                                                                                                  |
| System requirements: | Compatible with Windows 2000/XP/Server 2003/Vista/7/8/10                                                                      |
| Baud rates:          | max. 250 kbps                                                                                                                 |
| Main features:       | <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Full emulation of the RS-232 COM port</li> <li>• Chipset Prolific PL-2303</li> </ul> |
| Weight:              | 0.074 kg                                                                                                                      |
| Guarantee:           | 2 years                                                                                                                       |